AUTISM

Autism Unravelling—the UK charity dedicated to unravelling autism spectrum disorders

Autism seems to come from nowhere. Almost overnight your child stops talking, stops playing, becomes overactive, lines up his toys...

No-one can tell you why this has happened, or what to do now that it has. We can't do that either right now, but through research, we're moving towards a better understanding of the causes of autism.

Most research into autism spectrum disorders is concentrated on genetics, neurological and psychological studies.

But what about the biochemical and physiological issues?

Autism Unravelling is the leading UK charity dedicated to investigating biomedical issues in autism spectrum disorders. It is our aim to support and help to fund research studies where possible and appropriate.

To help us to achieve this vital task, we have brought together a Biomedical Research Study Group, comprised of eminent researchers and practitioners in the field of autism. Our team are happy to help with any queries you may have regarding all aspects of the biochemistry and physiology of autism.

We have already funded a research project at the University of Birmingham that shows how infections can block the formation of a vital enzyme in the detoxification process in autism. This has unravelling a major piece of the puzzle.

Following on from this research, we have now funded another joint project with the University of Bristol and the University of Birmingham to investigate whether this enzyme has a genetic defect or whether it has been affected by an environmental insult.

Autism isn't just about behaviour. Have you noticed any of the following in your child?

- Hyperactivity
- Diarrhoea and/or constipation
- Sleep disturbance
- Many ear and throat infections
- Doesn't feel pain
- Always thirsty
- Red cheeks and/or ears

Any or all of the above could indicate your child has physical issues.

If you would like to find out more about the biology and physiology of autism and also research issues in autism, please do think about joining Autism Unravelling. Membership costs just £15 a year and for this we'll send you a Resource File full of easy to understand information about the gut, the immune system, detoxification, nutrition, the very latest research and much, much more...

You will also receive our quarterly newsletter—Autism Unravelling Update—which includes more information in every issue to add to your Resource File, turning it into a comprehensive and valuable source of information on the biology and physiology of autism that we guarantee you will not find anywhere else.

As parents and carers ourselves, we know how important it is to be able to share problems and concerns and we know from experience how hard it can be to find anyone who understands how you are feeling. You can always call or e-mail us at any time about whatever it is that's important to you.
